Christian Chauplannaz

NATURE IN CELEBRATION

A glutton for all of life's pleasures, Christian Chauplannaz, a hyperactive retiree, has just closed the gates of the Jaÿsinia Botanical Garden in Samoëns, where he spent over forty years, to better indulge his other passions. The garden's life continues, and so does his own. Their paths separate. Where to begin? By channeling this jovial character who cracks jokes and hits the ground running by telling the story of "his" Jaÿsinia Botanical Garden, while we come to discover his own... Christian, the only son of farmers from Villard, immediately boasts about not even making it to high school graduation! Yet, he knew how to take his revenge when the time came, cramming to prepare for vocational training certificates or competitive exams, multiplying training courses and internships when the stakes, in his eyes, were worth it. Starting with his exemplary career at the Jaÿsinia botanical garden, which began in June 1983 under the best auspices. For this young septimontain from a rural background, who already had a passion for bees, but who very early on - under his father's guidance - began working on cycles and motorbikes, the retirement of the Jaÿsinia municipal employee, the aptly-named Narcisse Dechavassine, was a great opportunity to seize.

For lovers of heritage

A GREAT HISTORY

From the Middle Ages onwards, renowned stonemasons settled in this small glacial valley with its seven mountains, nestling in the heart of a magnificent mountain environment, and built a unique architectural heritage.

Today, Samoëns is a modern village with the allure of yesteryear: typical Savoyard houses, solid stone dwellings, large authentic farms and chalets share a wide, flat valley with an exceptional natural environment. A lively and bustling village, Samoëns is full of real treasures and invites lovers of heritage and old buildings to listen to History speak...

Witnesses of History

MUST SEE

A central square and a large linden tree

In the southern villages, there is always a central square, the place of life par excellence. There is also a plane tree, providing shade for passersby and bearing witness to the history of the village. In Samoëns, a preserved village in Haute-Savoie, we find this atmosphere thanks to a beautiful tree, a large linden tree planted in the central square of the village in 1435 and still in great shape (its 9.50m trunk circumference testifies to this). If it could speak, this large linden tree would tell the story of the appearance of the name Samoëns, from the 12th century, the multiplication of chapels, oratories and other buildings built by farmers, which have become stonemasons by necessity, the birth of an Alpine Botanical Garden with 2,400 varieties of plants, born from the donation of Marie-Louise Cognacq-Jaÿ, a former shepherdess of the village who became a key figure in Paris, the arrival of services and modernity... It would be the witness of a centuries-old and fascinating history!

The Frahans

The Frahans, stonemasons of Samoëns practice a craft that goes back a long way. In 1659, they transformed their professional group into a religious brotherhood called the "Confrérie des Quatre Couronnés" (Brotherhood of the Four Crowned), in homage to four Christian martyr saints. These saints had refused to build an idol statue for the Roman Emperor Diocletian. They can be seen depicted in a stained-glass window in the choir of the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption in Samoëns.

TO KNOW

Stonemasons...

At the bend in every street and every path, in the heart of the village, as in the surrounding area, there remain testimonies of extraordinary men who built Samoëns: the stonemasons. The "Frahans" were in fact men of the valley. From the 15th century, to supplement their income from traditional agricultural activity, they began to work with stone and limestone, very present in the region. Their reputation quickly spread around the world. Called to the biggest construction sites of Vauban or Napoleon Bonaparte, they went as far as Poland and Louisiana!

Samoëns, at the heart of their talent, keeps in memory an infinite number of chapels, oratories, mausoleums, houses and other buildings built by these men with incredible know-how. The Frahans brotherhood still exists today under the name of "Société des Maçons" Thanks to a handful of enthusiasts who have preserved the know-how of their elders. You can still meet some of them at a workshop and discover their story during the Wednesday morning guided tour.

...and an authentic and preserved rural life

Between agriculture, livestock farming and stone-cutting, Samoëns was built on a foundation of traditional of rural activities. Today, although tourism has taken the place of the stonemasons, there are still many carpenters, foresters, stockbreeders and farmers. They are the very soul of the village; they are the ones who keep traditions alive, the ones who enable the village to retain the authenticity that makes it such a fabulous place to live and holiday! "Made in Samoëns!" You'll be able to discover the dairy cooperative, the farms and the many mountain pastures.

DID YOU KNOW

Originally, seven mountains

The seven mountains or mountain pastures surrounding the village gave their name to the inhabitants of Samoëns from 1438: the Septimontains Living year-round in a flat-bottomed valley at an altitude of 720 m, they have forged a close relationship with the benevolent mountains that surround them. This is evidenced by the town's coat of arms, representing the seven mountains, topped with a fir tree.

SAMOËNS

The mountain pastures

The seven mountain pastures, or seven mountains, surrounding the village of Samoëns and having given their name to the inhabitants, the Septimontains, are: Fréterolle, Chardonnière, Vigny, Cuidex, La Vullie, Bostan, as well as Oddaz and Folly, often grouped together.

Pierre Bianco

TENDRE COEUR DE PIERRE: A TENDER HEART OF STONE

"Born in Samoëns with a trowel and a hammer in his hand," Pierre Bianco seems driven by a perpetual desire to share and explain. At over eighty years old, built like a rock, the man who was also, from 1959 until recently, a ski instructor, enjoys contact. Teaching has always captivated him and, whatever the age of the person he's talking to and the subject, he enjoys, as with children, testing their responsiveness and reflexes. Which, in some cases, can make you lose track and be unsettling... but satisfies his mischievous and curious side.

He then continues, delighted, his demonstration and never forgets to say in the preamble: "The individual is composed of three points: the head which thinks, the hand which is the most beautiful servant of the spirit, which transforms and then inside the individual, there is a heart or there is no heart. The rest is nonsense."

Once he gets going, there's no stopping him when he recounts a significant episode in his career, such as his experience as a monitor with a disabled child for fifteen years and everything that this real challenge brought him. With great calm and his soft voice, he remains imperturbable to any question and will answer later, much later... when he does not move on to another story!

Marie-Louise Cognacq-Jaÿ
 (1838-1925), philanthropist and co-founder of the iconic Parisian department store, La Samaritaine, created the Alpine Botanical Garden in her home town, Samoëns, in 1906. This garden, called Jaÿsinia, covers 3.7 hectares and is home to more than 4,500 species of alpine plants from around the world.

BOTANICAL GARDEN
 LA JAÿSINIA

Samoëns, a grand garden

Samoëns has a stunning botanical garden that showcases the rich flora of the area. Carved into the side of a hill in the very heart of the village, it is the result of an exceptional destiny: that of Marie-Louise Jaÿ, a young shepherdess born in Samoëns at the end of the 18th century who came to the capital at the age of 15 to seek her fortune!

NOT TO BE MISSED

La Jaÿsinia: An astonishing story
Open from mid-April to mid-December.
 “À vous les studios Cognacq-Jay”, this expression pronounced by Léon Zitrone marked the world of television, but also that of Samoëns. By marrying Ernest Cognacq, met in Paris, and founding with him La Samaritaine, the most famous department store in the capital, Marie-Louise Jaÿ became a famous and extremely wealthy lady. Remembering her childhood years and very attached to the hill on which she grazed her goats, Madame Cognacq-Jaÿ decided to create a botanical garden there, a testament to her desire to preserve the beauty of the place. This is the birth, in 1906, of “la Jaÿsinia”.

THE SEPTIMONTAINS

Claude Genevois

CHOO-CHOO

In Samoëns, he is nicknamed "Choo-Choo". Claude Genevois, owner and driver of the Little Tourist Train on tires which winds through the streets of the villages of Samoëns and Les Vallons, always delights children of all ages.

Originally from Oisans, settled with his family in Les Deux Alpes, Claude followed his wife, eager to seize a professional opportunity in Samoëns in 2000. At the time, the Little Tourist Train, which began operating in 1993, was dormant due to a lack of a driver. For Claude, who was passionate about independence at this turning point in his career, history must be written under the sign of freedom. He bought the famous Little Red Train and created his company in 2003. He subsequently acquired a second, all-white and more powerful one. Retired but still active and happy today at the wheel of his Septitrain, Claude takes legitimate pride in welcoming passengers delighted to take this "vintage and collector" means of transport that is part of the Samoëns postcard. There are only about ten of these in circulation in the entire Haute-Savoie region. In all objectivity, Claude finds that "coming to Samoëns without taking a ride on the Septitrain is like visiting Paris without seeing the Eiffel Tower!" Not wrong!

The 'Piste des Cascades', a 14 km blue run

The Piste des Cascades or the joy of skiing down 14 kilometers, in the heart of a nature reserve, without the constraints of ski lifts... This 14-kilometre blue run links Flaine and Sixt-Fer-à-Cheval, with a total height difference of 1,700 metres. The originality and fundamental advantage of this slope obviously lies in the fact that the skier can cover the run without, at any time, needing to take a ski lift. In addition to the pleasure of skiing without constraints, this slope is above all a real breath of fresh air and nature. With a single stroke of the ski, you descend from the summit of the Grandes Platières to the banks of the Giffre, admiring in turn its majesty Mont Blanc, the Désert de Platé, Lake Gers, the Tenneverge, the Ruan and a multitude of frozen waterfalls. Keep your eyes wide open...

THE SEPTIMONTAINS

Michel Veisy

BELIEVE IN SANTA CLAUS

With a wave of his magic wand, Michel Veisy makes dreams that seem impossible come true, overcomes seemingly insurmountable challenges... and shares incredible adventures with those who have a revenge to take on life. Beyond words and experiences, his charisma impresses and unites. The story of Michel Veisy, this character with deep, incredibly ice-blue eyes, begins in the charming, high-perched hamlet of Chantemerle overlooking Samoëns. A magical and protected place that, even today, opens a parenthesis in time. There, in front of the pretty chapel with its renovated bulbous bell tower, between his old primary school and his 18th century family home, he recalls, with Olympian calm, the happy early childhood that left a lasting impression on him. Until the age of ten, Michel never went down to the centre of Samoëns. As he grew up, he, his three brothers and their sister, the youngest born in 1961, would divide their time between Chantemerle in the summer and their house on the outskirts of the village in the winter, more convenient for their entry into working life.

THE SEPTIMONTAINS

Aurore Delesmillières

ENERGY MADE WOMAN

If you're expecting to meet «Little Miss Farmer», you're wrong! Aurore Delesmillières is far from that old-fashioned image. She is perfectly in tune with both her times and her farm, La Ferme du Criou in Vercland, where this businesswoman speaks enthusiastically and unfiltered about her job as a farmer, sweeping aside clichés with a wave of her hand.

After five minutes of chatting, we understand that Aurore has quite the personality! Her husband, Bernard Mogenet, also a farmer, is very busy with his mandates as vice-president of the Savoie Mont Blanc Chamber of Agriculture and president of the FDSEA (Departmental Federation of Agricultural Workers' Unions) of Savoie, and can rely on Aurore's skills and dynamism. A fountain of knowledge when it comes to talking about her profession. A wealth of knowledge acquired during her studies as an agricultural engineer and several internships. She doesn't like to beat around the bush, she's straightforward and expresses herself with humor. So much so that at times we imagine her on stage for a stand-up comedy about agriculture today!

THE SEPTIMONTAINS

Marie Du Bourg

THE JOY OF LIVING

A bright smile lights up Marie's face. With Jacques, her husband, two mountain lovers, and their three children, they found refuge in Samoëns. In every sense of the word, since they are revitalizing the Refuge du Folly and converting an old farmhouse in the valley to house their family. A radical life change in search of new values. The least we can say when listening to Marie is that she is thriving in Samoëns. After a very busy first summer season at the Refuge du Folly, with flexible hours seven days a week, she still has stars in her eyes when she talks about this experience. Marie and Jacques, great athletes, had been staying in refuges for a long time already, but becoming guardians is another story! That of a carefully considered choice, a reconversion methodically prepared by this courageous and hard-working couple, more Cartesian than their surprising decision might suggest.

Some examples of actions taken

- 10 public charging points in various car parks for recharging electric vehicles.
- The commune begins to adopt electric tools and vehicles.

Energy side

The ice skating rink and the Bois aux Dames building are powered by geothermal energy. All public lighting is now fitted with LEDs, and certain sectors will soon be regulated by clocks or presence detectors to optimise energy consumption.

Gentle route "Au fil du Giffre"

"Au fil du Giffre": a green, non-motorized way through the heart of the valley. This peaceful itinerary links Sixt-Fer-à-Cheval to Tignes, offering a unique opportunity to discover the area on foot, snowshoes, bike or horseback, in the heart of a green and serene setting.

Natural spaces with Natura 2000

Samoëns, a preserved territory: A third of its surface area is classified Natura 2000, guaranteeing the protection of exceptional flora and fauna. This label distinguishes its unique habitats and remarkable species.

The environmental observatory of the Grand Massif

Since 2008, the Grand Massif area has had an environmental observatory covering 4,219 hectares in five municipalities. It records local biodiversity and monitors environmental developments to better preserve sensitive areas.

The Grand Massif environmental observatory

The Grand Massif ski area, including Samoëns, is aiming for sustainable management by 2030, with three objectives: zero net carbon, positive biodiversity and zero waste. Its actions include a plan to reduce energy consumption, protect sensitive environments, restore ecosystems and raise awareness of water pollution.
